Delightful Entertainment Given By Mr. Salmon.

POSSIBILITIES OF THE PIANO ABLY INTERPRETED.

Master Donlan And Miss Green Contribute Largely To The Program.

MUSIC LOVING PUBLIC IS WELL REPRESENTED AT PEIRCE HALL.

Admirers of the piano were delightfully entertained in Peirce hall on Tuesday evening and many of those in the audience departed with a new conception of the instrument's possibilities.

The artist whose work gave such pleasure was Alvah Glover Salmon of Boston, known as one of the most thorough masters of the piano forte in this section of the country. The program, although of reasonable length, was not sufficient to satisfy his hearers and practically every number was encored.

There were selections from the works of the most famous writers of piano music, including Godard, Rubinstein, Schumann and Bach and all were rendered in a manner to bring out to the full the hidden beauties of the compositions. At times, the music was so soft and low that it was almost necessary to strain one's ears to hear it at all, while at others, the hall was completely filled with thunderous melody.

The products of Mr. Salmon's own genius were not by any means the least popular of the program numbers. They included "Chanson Triste," "Cradle Song," "Mazurka Rustique," "Romance" and "Tarantelle," the second and fifth of these being given here by special request The "Cradle Song" was the most liberally applauded of the evening's offerings. The selections proved Mr. Salmon to posses unusual talent and were of a character to give great promise of more ambitious work in the future.

The pianist was assisted by Master Edward Donlan, the noted boy soprano of St. Paul's church, Boston. Master Donlan's songs were "The Holy City," "Sleep Little Baby Of Mine" and "The Swallows," there being, besides, two encores. The young soloist is the possessor of a rich, clear voice of singular power and was received with little less favor than Mr. Salmon himself.

Miss Mignon B. Green was the accompanist for Master Donlan and her fine playing did much to increase the singer's effectives. Miss Green's abilities in this direction are too well known to make elaborate praise necessary, but it must be said that her work on Tuesday evening was such as to highly gratify her many friends.

The recital was given under the management of Miss Green and the gratitude of every lover of music is due her for providing so splendid a treat.

SUCCESSFUL PARISH SALE.

United Effort Of Rogers' Mission Circle And Junior Kings' Daughters.

The Rogers' Mission circle and the Junior Kings' Daughters of the North Congregational parish had a joint sale in the chapel on Middle street on Tuesday evening, which called out many attendants.

The Mission had a candy table, and this was draped in pink crepe paper and caught by loops of evergreen. It was lighted by silver candelabra and graced with a choice bouquet of arbutus. Misses Margaret M. Goodwin, Ethel J. Davis, Helen S Walker and Ruth M. Davis were in charge.

Another of the Mission circle attractions was a table devoted to fancy work and cared for by Misses Marion White and Mabel Somerby.

A booth decorated in green crepe paper was assigned to the work of the members of the Mission, and consisted of baskets, dolls' hats, and thimble cases. This was presided over by Miss Katherine Sweetser, who had the assistance of Masters William Parsons and Elliot Spring.

The Junior Kings' Daughters were in evidence by a combination candy and fancy work booth, this being handsomely decorated with lavender crepe paper, and illuminated by a branching candelabra which was decorated to represent a May pole, the ribbons therefrom leading to and held by daintly dressed dolls. The following officers of the J. K. D. were in charge: Miss Eva Stilson, president, Miss Bertha Anderson, secretary, Miss Ida Woods, treasurer. They were aided by Margaret Stein, Florence Parker and Lucy Holmes.

During the evening, chocolate and wafers were served by Miss Frances M. Tredick and Miss Edith G. Brewster. Ice cream was also sold

A pleasing entertainment was presented in which piano solos were rendered by Miss Marion McIntire and Miss Ruth Drake; violin and piano duets by Miss Nina Dutton and Harold Dutton.

It was a delightfully social occasion and no doubt gave substantial returns to the projectors, who were Mrs. William J. Cater, vice president, and Miss Martha Tredick, treasurer of the Rogers' Mission circle.

NEW HAMPSHIRE GOLF ASSOCIATION.

Another meeting of the New Hampshire Golf association will be held here shortly, when the constitution will be acted on and the officers elected. There have been several applications for membership in the league, and none but incorporated clubs will be taken in. That is, clubs made up of stock companies organized for a few months in the summer season and with no resident members, will not be given active membership.

It is quite possible that a state tournament under the auspices of the league will be held this coming season, open to resident members of any golf club in the league.

AN INTERESTING SOUVENIR.

Old Bill Announcing Concert By the Great Gottschalk In the Temple, Back In '63.

A very interesting souvenir of former theatrical days in Portsmouth recently came into the possession of Chauncey B. Hoyt. It was while he was reframing some pictures that he found this relic, in the back of one of them.

It is an announcement advertising the coming to the Temple (now Music hall) of the great Gottschalk, one of the best pianists the world has ever known.

"For one night only," reads the bill, "on Saturday evening, July 18, 1863."

There are probably people still living in this city who will recall this concert

Gottschalk was assisted on this occasioin by Madame Amalia Patti Strakosch, "prima donna contralto from New York, Boston and Philadelphia academies of music." S. Behrens was director and conductor.

The program was as follows:

Part First.

1. Overture, "William Tell" (arranged for four hands by L. M. Gottschalk) Rossini
Performed by L. M. Gottschalk and S. Behrens.
2. Amon Fils, "Le Prophete", Meyerbeer
Sung by M'me Patti Strakosch.
3. Because, (The Mother's Cradle song) Gottschalk
L. M. Gottschalk.
4. Pastorella e Cavaliere, Gottschalk
L. M. Gottschalk.
5. Good Night and Pleasant Dreams, Wallace
Composed for and sung by M'me Amalia Patti Strakosch.
6. Home, Sweet, Home, Gottschalk
L. M. Gottschalk.

Part Second.

7. Ojos Creollos, (for four hands) Gottschalk
Performed by the author and S. Behrens.
8. Within a Mile of Edinboro' Town, (Scotch ballad)
M'me Amalia Patti Strakosch.
9. a. Last Hope, (Religious meditation), Gottschalk
b. Marlborough, (Caprice burlesque) Gottschalk
L. M. Gottschalk.
10. The Union, (Paraphrase de concert) Gottschalk
L. M. Gottschalk.

The admission was 50 cents, "to all parts of the house," as the bill says, and "no extra charge for reserved seats. Tickets may be obtained at Preston's drug store and Cobb's music store. Doors open at 7¼, concert to commence at 8."

The public is told that Gottschalk "will perform several of his latest and most brilliant compositions"

A footnote says, "Those who secure their seats in advance are entitled to have the indisputed possession of their seats during the entire evening and the manager (Max Strakosch) begs to inform the public who attend Mr. Gottschalk's concert that all seats previously secured can only be occupied by their rightful owner. Several pieces performed by Mr. Gottschalk are of so delicate a character that the greatest silence is necessary during the execution of the same."

Death In Boston of David L. Webster, Leather Merchant.

David L. Webster, for many years prominent in the leather business in Boston, died at his residence in that city on Tuesday. He was born in Portsmouth, July 24, 1813. In 1832 he went to Boston and in 1835 established himself in the leather business in North Market street. The business has been continued to this day under the name of Webster & Co. In 1871 and 1872 he was a member of the comomn council and in 1876 he served in the legislature as representative. He was appointed a member of the Massachusetts state board of health in 1873, and retained that position and subsequent membership in the state board of health, lunacy and charity, for several years. A SUGGESTION.

Mr. Editor:—An association of which F W Hartford is the prime mover, has been orginazed in Portsmouth to conduct theatrical enterprises. They have purchased the Music hall in that city and will run it for their purposes The suggestion has been made that we offer them the lease of our opera house at a fair rental, they to operate and manage it as a private enterprise, only giving us heat for our offices, police station and library As the city hall building is now managed it is an elephant on our hands and a pretty big elephant at that The salaries for taking care of the building and labor around the stage properties is over $2500 per year It is true that some messenger and errand work is paid for out of this sum, but that is so trifling that a couple of hundred of dollars would pay for all the service needed Eliminate this janitor, watchman and other service from our expense account and save the coal bill, which is no inconsiderable sum, and the interest factor on $181,000 would not seem so great a burden.

As now managed, the opera house is rented to shows and other entertainments for what it costs to heat and light it, giving the use of the building "free gratis for nothing." If the Portsmouth syndicate or any other organization would heat the part of the building used for city purposes and pay us something besides, it would be a burden lifted from the tax payers' shoulders and at which the citizens generally would rejoice.

In addition it would secure us a good line of shows, such as Portsmouth and Manchester are having every winter. How would it do for the city government to talk it over in one of their meetings.

FROM A "HELLO" GIRL.

She Lays Down Some Rules For People Using the Telephone to Live Up To.

A "central" girl, prompted by long experience on the wires, has prepared the following rules, which people who use the telephone should live up to strictly:

1 If you have a telephone in your office or store, ring up "central" and then go wait on a customer.

2. Always speak in an undertone, in order to make "central" ask you over what you want. If she does not hear you, tell her to "wake up" or "take the cotton out of her ears."

3. Take your time in answering your bell, or, what is better still, do not answer it at all, but in half an hour ring up and ask who called you, and get mad if "central" has forgotten who it was She has nothing else to do but remember.

4. Allow everybody who wants to to use your telephone.

5. Hang up the receiver big end up, as in this way it gets full of dust, which makes another cause for complaint.

6 Bang on the transmitter with a lead pencil as though you intended to knock it through the wall. This invariably makes it talk better.

7 Refuse to pay toll messages, and if you are on the line with some one, always listen to their conversation and be sure to want the use of the line while they are using it.

8. Whenever you see the manager tell him if he does not give you a better telephone or get that one fixed you will throw the whole thing out of the window

9. When the inspector comes, deny that you have ever complained of the telephone and say that it works like a charm.

10. Be sure and tell the collector exactly how many dollars you lost because the 'phone was out of order on a certain day, and under no conditons pay a bill upon presentation the first time—they might expect it to be a regular occurrence

11 If some one on your party line should ring central innocently when you were talking, don't lose the opportunity to remind them that you always knew they were "rubbers" and call them all the pretty names you can think of; it makes fast friends or neighbors to do this

12. Don't fail to notify the manager when you find your line is busy that if he can't change you up to another line he can take your telephone out. This is a part of your contract and the company should be very glad to straighten out all neighborhood scraps at their own expense.

13. If you don't get the party called for tell the operator you know she has got it in for you or is plugging for your competitor. If you are cut off tell the manager she did it on purpose If making dates with some other lady's husband and some one overhears it, ask to have your line changed so another operator will answer your calls thereafter In this way you will become more popular

Robert Edeson in his success of the present season, Soldiers of Fortune, will appear at Music hall Thursday evening. You should buy your tickets today.

UNITARIAN SOCIETY PREPARING FOR A MAY PARTY.

Efforts Being Made To Raise Funds For Completion Of Alumni Hall.

THINGS SAID AND DONE IN OUR NEIGHBORING COUNTY SEAT.

(From Our Special Correspondent.)

Exeter, April 28.

The Unitarian society will hold its annual May fair in the town hall on Friday afternoon and evening, May 1. For almost fifty years these fairs have met approval and ready patronage and this year should prove no exception, as an unusually attractive program has been arranged.

The fair will open at two o'clock and at four a pleasing entertainment of a high order will be given, consisting of a May Pole dance and story telling by Miss Sara Cone Bryant, of Boston. This last feature is a novel one and alone should be worthy of a large attendance. Miss Bryant is highly spoken of by those who have heard her and she has no equal as a professional story teller. Her stories have a wide range and appeal to old and young alike. The Maypole dance should prove the best ever seen in Exeter. It will be participated in by twenty-three young girls who have had a most careful training. There will be singing in addition to the dance and the entertainment will close with the crowning of the May Queen.

From six to eight o'clock the ladies of the society will serve a delicious supper of lobster salad, cold meats, strawberry shortcake, hot rolls, coffee and other delicacies.

The evening will be devoted to dancing and the committee in charge has secured Dow's orchestra of Newburyport. A short concert will precede the dance.

There will be the usual display of tables, where fancy articles, cake and candy will be on sale. A goose for the benefit of the children has been secured after much trouble and it should be well patronized. There will be an attractive exhibit of baskets, bead work, chains and novelties, kindly loaned by the Arts and Crafts society and samples of the members' winter work.

The New England Alumni association of the academy is sending out circulars to Phillips-Exeter graduates asking for contributions to the building fund of Alumni hall. The hall, which will cost $35,000, is practically completed in accordance with the original design. Nothing remains now but to finish the interior. The circular says in part:

"We have been able to collect about $5,000 of the $15,000 which the New England association desires to raise. In our second circular we tried to impress upon each alumnus of the academy that subscriptions in any amount were desired, from one dollar upwards. It is the desire of all connected with the academy that this should be truly an Alumni hall, that it should be built by the alumni as a whole, and that the money should come in small amounts with the idea that each living alumnus should be represented by contributions. There are in New England about 1,500 alumni living. If each would contribute a small amount, the $15,000 could be easily raised. The money thus far obtained by the committee has come from eighty-nine alumni, varying in amounts from $1 to $100.

"We desire that the New England association shall raise its proportion, if not more than its proportion, towards the cost of the building and we feel quite sure that you will not regret whatever sum you are able to contribute towards its construction. We want to have the building completed and in presentable shape at the coming reunion in June, which is to celebrate the 122nd anniversary of the founding of the academy."

The circular is signed by Professor Cummings of Boston, Francis N. Loet of Boston, the late Francis C. Faulkner of Keene, Harry Butler of Portland and Frank A. Merrill of Boston.

The attention of the superior court was taken up wholly today in listening to the arguments in the Henry Little vs. the Boston and Maine railroad case. It will last a day or two longer.

The jury in the Ward vs. Russo case brought in a sealed verdict last evening. It was read this morning and gave the plaintiff $876.

Judge Stone stated today that it would be necessary for him to go to Plymouth on May 5. This was a week earlier than he had thought court opened there. Unless another judge can be secured, court will have to adjourn this week.

At last evening's meeting of John L. Bell lodge, I. O. G. T., these officers were elected for the coming three months:

C. T., Miss Elizabeth Bowker;
V. T., Mrs. Charles Carter;
P. C. T., Miss Mabel M. Smith;
Chaplain, Miss May Tattersall;
Secretary, Charles Stackpole;
A. S., Mrs. F. G. Towle;
F. S., Arthur B. Chapman;
Treasurer, Foster W. Smith;
Marshal, John J. Dow;

Guard, Miss Sadie Kelley.

The officers will be installed next Monday evening by Lodge Deputy Thomas Wallace.

The burial services of Mrs. Abigail S. Folsom were held at the cemetery chapel this afternoon. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Wilbert L. Andreson of the First Congregational church.

Exeter lost this afternoon's game with Harvard for two reasons, her inability to hit Coburn and her very loose fielding. Coburn pitched a masterly game, was cool at all periods of the contest and always had his game well in hand. It cannot be understood how the academy boys fielded so loosely and especially why the work of Cendella was so poor. All good ball players, however, have an off day occasionally.

In the first inning, Coburn struck his three men out and in the second retired two of the men on strikes. He kept up this effectiveness throughout the game, although Exeter had several chances to score, once having the bases filled. Harvard made nearly all her runs after two men were out and the bases were empty. In the fourth inning three errors by Cendella and one by Heim, after two men were out, with a beautiful double steal by Matthews and H. Kernan, netted the Cambridge boys three runs.

The Harvard men were given but little chance to show their fielding abilities, for Coburn struck out twelve men. They batted hard, but Capt. Cenney compelled them to hug their bases closely. Heim pitched good ball and had he had even fair support the score would have been entirely different. The feature of Harvard's work, otherwise than the pitching of Coburn, was a beautiful catch by Randall. The features of Exeter's play were two star catches by Cenney. The game had to be called at the end of the sixth inning to allow the Harvard men to catch a train. The score:

NEW TRICK OF FURRIERS.

Cats in Warsaw has not a very easy time at present, and for the reason that their skins are in greater demand than they have ever been before. Some enterprising furriers of that city, it is said, recently discovered that the skins of cats could be dyed so that they would closely resemble costly furs, and, being determined to profit by the discovery, they waged a campaign against cats and soon secured a large number of skins. The market price of a cat's skin ranges from ten to fifteen cents, but it will soon be much higher, as it is becoming daily more difficult to catch any cats in Warsaw. In regard to the dyed skins, a Vienna journal says that they have been palmed off on many persons as valuable fur.

The ceremony was performed in Grace church, Bishop Potter officiating. A number of the personal friends of the couple were present. Mr. Hearst's best man was Orrin Peck of San Francisco and the witnesses were S. S. Carvalho and P. J. Mar.

The newly married couple sailed by the Kaiser Wilhelm II. this afternoon for Europe.

THE SUMMER SCHEDULE.

Goes Into Effect On the Boston and Maine Road, Monday, June 22.

The summer schedule on the Boston and Maine railroad system will go into effect at 12:01 a. m., Monday, June 22, and on that day the Bar Harbor express from New York to the noted Maine watering place will resume running. This train was placed on the schedule last year, and despite predicitions of failure from a monetary view point, it proved remarkably successful. The train was discontinued through the winter, but the new announcements promise it to run daily through the entire year. The trip from New York to Bar Harbor occupied seventeen hours, the distance being more than 500 miles. The train is regarded as the most important and fastest maintained in New England.

SPECIAL MEETING AT CONCORD.

A special meeting of the governor and council will be held at Concord today. A member of the board of railroad commissioners will probably be appointed to succeed Hon. Francis C. Faulkner, who recently died.

Russia Intends To Stick To Her Course.

PROTESTS ONLY MAKE HER THE MORE DETERMINED.

At Least, So We Are Told By A Tokio Despatch.

THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT RECEIVES NO AUTHORITATIVE INFORMATION.

Tokio, Japan, April 28.—The Jiji today published a despatch from Pekin, in which its correspondent quoted the Russian minister as saying that the effect of the remonstrances of Japan and the other powers would be that the statesmen now paramount at St. Petersburg would decide to incorporate the three provinces of Manchuria in the Russian empire.

Final And Definite.

Pekin, April 28.—China has given Russia what the officials describe as a final and definite refusal of the demands regarding Manchuria.

Kuropatkin Starts.

St. Petersburg, April 28.—The war minister, Gen. Kuropatkin, started on a special train today for Manchuria. He will possibly go to Japan. A farewell breakfast was given in honor of Gen. Kuropatkin, yesterday, at the Chinese legation.

Lieut. Gen. Sakharoff has been appointed acting war minister during the absence of Gen. Kuropatkin. The latter, who intends to make a thorough inspection of Manchuria, will be absent two months and will visit Port Arthur, Dalny and Vladivostock.

Although the general's intention to make the thip was announced publicly some weeks ago, his departure has excited speculation in view of the recent news from Manchuria.

The marine minister has decided to order the construction of twenty gunboats, which will be furnished with turbine engines, for the protection of the Russian frontier at the Amoor river.

China's Downfall.

Evansville, Ind., April 28.—Charles Denby, formerly United States minister to China, in an interview today expressed the opinion that if Russia should seize Manchuria the disintegration of China could not be long postponed.

Special Cabinet Meeting.

Washington, April 28.—An important conference between the president and the members of his cabinet will be held in St. Louis, probably on Wednesday night. President Roosevelt and Secretary Shaw, who is to be of the presidential party at that time, will be joined in St. Louis by other members of the cabinet. Among the matters to be considered are Russia's attitude in Manchuria and the developments in the investigation of the post office department.

Anxiety in Washington.

Washington ,April 28.—No response has come to the state department as yet from either Ambassador McCormick at St. Petersburg or Minister Conger at Pekin to the inquiries respecting Russia's demands in connection with Manchuria. The officials are in a state of suspense in view of the conflict in the semi-official despatches from the Russian and Chinese capitals.

In the absence of official statements of Russia's purpose, the opinion prevails here that these Russian demands were really put out in a tentative form last week, and not in regular official shape. There is good reason to believe that the Chinese government itself let the demands leak out, in order to secure the support of the powers in its refusal of the Russian tenders.

Noting the intense public excitement over the proposition, the Russian government, it is surmised, took steps through the statement issued in St. Petersburg yesterday to abandon several of the original demands. If this assumption proves well founded Russia will not further interfere with the consummation of the United States trade treaty with China.

The fourth demand characterized by Russia as "unimportant," is not so regarded here, for it amounts to an indefinite continuance under Russian direction of the present conditions in China, which will stop all reform movements.

It is now learned that in the original statement of this fourth demand, namely, "The present status of the administration of Manchuria is to remain unchanged," there was an important element of error, and the word Mongolia should take the place of Manchuria. The demand as thus modified continues the statu quo in all north China.

IN COMMISSION.

The Yacht Reliance Is Formally Turned Over To Her Owners.

Bristol, R. I., April 28.—The cup defender Reliance was placed in commission this afternoon. The Herreshoffs turned over the yacht to the owners and the boat went out for a spin this afternoon, remaining at Newport tonight.

The formalities of placing the boat in commission were not elaborate. On board the Reliance during the racing season will be the manager, C. Oliver Iselin, Capt. Woodbury Kane, Herbert C. Leeds, Newbury D. Thorne, Dr. Manahan, Capt. Charles Bar, First Mate George Peterson, Second Mate Chris Christiansen, a boatswain, three quartermasters, a carpenter, a rigger and two sailmakers. On board the tender Sunbeam there are 30 men, including officers and crew.

The winch plan for hauling in the main sheets on board the Reliance proved to be a very clever arrangement when tested in the breeze outside of Newport Saturday. It is claimed that when Nat Herreshoff decided on a plan to do away with the old plan of hauling the main sheet by the sailors when the men were sometimes knee deep in water to leeward, he hit upon a decided improvement, and one that is already showing that it is a plan that fills a long felt want on board cup racing craft.

The arrangements for conveying orders to the winch men down below are unique and simple, not a word is spoken, and it follows that there will be no confusion. When the main sheet is to be hauled in the main sheet man receives orders from one of the officers on the deck, and at his station near the traveller stamps his foot once on the deck directly over the winch manipulators below.

Then begins the winding in of the main sheet. When far enough in the main sheet man stamps his foot twice on the deck and the winchman places the clutch. When the sheet is slacked away it is done by loosening the parts of the standing rigging.

England is Disturbed.

London, April 28.—The British yachtsmen are much interested in the published report from the United States that Ratsey and Lapthorne, the English sailmakers, who have an establishment at City Island, N. Y., have been given orders for suits of sails for the Reliance, the Constitution and the Columbia.

The British yachtsmen are disturbed by the fact that the Reliance went out for a trial spin on Sunday. The Evening News says it "trusts none of the international races will be fixed for a Sunday or Sir Thomas Lipton may lose by feeling compelled to scratch."

IDENTIFIED BY MISS BURKE.

She Picked Out Stearns As Her Assailant.

Winchester, Mass., April 28.—Miss Annie Burke, one of the young women who were assaulted last week in the public streets here, visited the county jail in East Cambridge today and identified William H. Stearns as the man who had assailed her.

Stearns has been held on the charge of felonious assault until tomorrow when the presiding justice of the Woburn court will decide whether there is sufficient evidence to hold him for the grand jury. So quickly and easily did Miss Burke identfy Stearns that the police feel that the identification is unmistakable.

Upon arriving at the jail Miss Burke found eight men standing in the corridor, all of them wearing hats and coats. She was asked to pick out the man who had assaulted her and she at once, and without hesitation, selected Stearns. The young woman informed Chief of Police McIntosh that she could tell her assailant out of a thousand men.

Stearns has already been identified by Miss Bolton, the other young woman who was assaulted.

ARRESTED NEAR WEEHAWKEN.

Frederick Tarlton Accused of Robbing South Kingston Postoffice.

New York, April 28.—Frederick Tarlton ,alias Fred ,Wilson, was arrested near Weehawken today by postoffice inspectors on the charge of breaking into the postoffice at South Kingston, N. H., April 16, 1902. Tarlton admitted his identity when arrested ,and was committed to the Hudson county jail.

TROUBLE IN CONCORD.

Granite Cutters And Their Employers Disagree On Price List.

Concord, April 28.—The granite contractors and the local branch of the Granite Cutters' National union are at odds over the new bill of prices presented by the union to take effect May 1, but it is probable that an amicable agreement will be reached between the parties before Thursday night, and that work will go on as usual.

The union asks for three changes. The first raises the minimum pay of cutters from $2.80 per day to $3. This has been refused by the contractors on the ground that the conditions here do not warrant the increase. The second calls for a pay day every two weeks. This the contractors have notified the cutters that they will grant. The third relates to the matter of apprentices and provides that only one apprentice to every six men shall be taken on, the apprentice to work for three years before another can be employed. On this the contractors have submitted a counter proposition allowing them to take on an apprentice to every six men once in two years.

That Tormenting Cold that made you wretched last winter will not come back if you take Allen's Lung Balsam when your throat is raw and sore. This admirable remedy is free from opium. Take it in time.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

The generally voiced sentiment at the dedication of the new New York stock exchange was that the event meant the opening of a new speculative chapter, of saner and less extravagant movements than in the last couple of years, and at the same time without the upset and mishaps that have characterized dealings in the old Produce exchange, which many superstitious traders believed "hoodooed."

Conditions at the moment, despite the slowness with which the market broadens, are decidedly favorable to an enhancement of prices before the threshold of summer is crossed. More consideration is now being paid to the underlying rather than the superficial, to the permanent as against the transient, factors in the situation and it is now much less fashionable to be a bear.

A fortnight ago there were but two serviceable shafts left in the bear quiver—the Northern Securities decision and tight money. These also are now blunted. The Northern Securities tangle is shelved for months, until the supreme court unravels it at leisure, and is no longer a stock market influence.

The tension in the money market is breaking up rapidly, like ice in northern streams, and a freshet of cash is pouring through the east, released from western reservoirs. Money is now on a five per cent. basis as against six per cent. not many days since, and the easing process is still underway. This removes perhaps the worst snag in the speculative channel. Meanwhile, the congestion of securities is being gradually remedied by absorption at present bargain prices and abstention from further issues.

The market's technical position, at the same time, is ideal for a spring rise, as prices are on what six months ago would have been considered an impossibly low level. With this situation and with the brilliancy of the industrial outlook untarnished the time would seem ripe for purchases for the pull.—From Cory, Milliken and company's weekly letter.

MINISTER SOUNDS WARNING

How Long Will It Be Until We Go the Way of the Roman Empire?

Speaking in Carnegie hall, New York, recently, at the annual benefit of the St. Andrew coffee stands, on the subject of centralization of capital and the inequality of conditions among men in relation to wealth, Dr. Madison C. Peters said:

Until God makes all people's brains alike so long will there be rich and poor in human society. The leveling process would take away the stimulus to individual accumulation, and therefore the capital of a community could not grow, but would be diminished and every man's share lessened; but, in spite of these facts, individuals among us are becoming too rich and others getting too poor.

Concentration of wealth exists today in forms which are perilous to American institutions. De Tocqueville warned us more than a century ago that the greatest peril in America would arise from plutocracy.

It is true that nearly one-half of the families of the United States own the real estate they occupy, but it is also true that seven-eighths of the families own but one-eighth of the wealth of the nation. Twenty-five thousand men own one-half of the wealth of this country, and 200,000 own quite 80 per cent of our total capital.

One-half of the wealth produced in this country annually goes as a tribute to 23,000 persons, and thus about one-half of our population of 77,000,000 are working all the time for 25,000 of their fellow men.

One hundred and twenty-five families in the United States have more money than all the other 77,000,000 people put together.

Just prior to the fall of the Roman empire the entire wealth was in the hands of 1,900 men. How long will it be if our present ratio be maintained ere a few hundred men will own all the wealth of the country?

Twenty men in this country have it in their power, by reason of the wealth they control, to arrive at an understanding and any day they should so choose could stop every wheel of commerce from revolving, block every avenue of trade and strike dumb every electric key.

No sensible man ought to object to an industrial system which allows a man by his genius and industry to make all the money he can. But we do protest against accumulation by legalized methods of robbery by which a few steal what the billions earn.

A Tip For Railway Men.

Doubtless some of the increases in pay lately obtained were due to natural causes—the working of the law of supply and demand. The demand for labor has been unprecedented. Any man of intelligence and experience in railway work has been able to get employment. Competition among employers for the services of wage earners has been very active. Under such conditions increased wages are inevitable. But there is no doubt that some of the increases within the last year have been obtained practically under duress, for the reason that financial interests have been timid, dreading the consequences of a strike. Managers have yielded many points not on their merits, but purely through considerations of expediency. But advances on such a basis are not likely to be permanent, and there is surely a limit beyond which they cannot go. The labor leaders are doubtless claiming credit for the entire advance. For so much as they have been able to procure over and above that which would arise from natural causes they are entitled to a certain kind of credit, but if they push the limit too far they will merely create conditions the reaction from which will be harmful to their own interests. Up to the present time the railroads have yielded on the score of expediency.—Railway Age.

Cheap Men.

"If single men should live on $200 a year and families on $300," said Professor Clark as he thoughtfully turned his cuffs, "I am afraid that two-thirds of the saloons and vaudeville houses in Chicago would have to go out of business." The professor is right. Not only the saloons and places of amusement, but also the art stores, the jewelers, the bookstores, the bootblacks, the barbers, the restaurants, the tailoring establishments and some of the big department stores. Most of Evanston that comes to Chicago every day to do business could stay at home and admire the stately trees of the classic suburb or watch the gentle ripple of the wavelets on the lake. Some of them might wonder, too, where they were going to get even the $200. If we could all live on nothing and did not need clothes, there would be no need to raise crops or run factories. After we had stocked up the foreign markets there would be no reason why the American workingman should not take a vacation for about two years. Then, if he hadn't saved up $400, he could try the experiment of living on nothing a year.—Chicago Daily News.

The Teamsters.

No other organization of wage workers ever made the strides, gathered within its membership the large number of men and succeeded in getting so satisfactory wage agreements and hours of labor as have the teamsters' unions of Chicago. The oldest of the teamsters' unions—that of the coal wagon drivers—is less than three years old. Now the national union has a membership in Chicago alone of over 35,000 and is still growing.

One of the youngest of the affiliated unions of the teamsters—that of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, organized Sept. 13, 1902—now has over 2,000 members and stands third in the list of those having the largest membership.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 29, 1903.

Hon. George Fred Williams of Massachusetts is not dead, as his keeping his mouth shut for so long a time may have led some people to infer. He spoke in Morgan chapel, Boston, on Sunday, to a sympathetic audience, raked down both the old parties and advocated a new one, and heartily endorsed government ownership and control of railroads express companies, telephone and telegraph companies and pretty much everything else. Referring to the democratic opposition in the Massachusetts legislature to the so-called police assessors bill, which provides that the asessment in Boston shall be made by the police instead of by the ward heelers, he said: "I have the greatest respect and admiration for the magnificent battle the Boston democratic machine is fighting against anybody trying to prevent them from repating," showing that he understands his former political associates and their little games thoroughly. He said he had been in about all the political parties there are, and hoped to be in a few more before he dies; and that the moment in life he dreads most is not when the end is near, but when he shall not have the courage or strength to change his mind. He need not fear that this latter calamity will ever overtake him As a political acrobat, able to pass from one party to the most distant extremity of another one at a single jump, he has never been excelled, and talent such as that does not grow dim with age The time will never come when he cannot flop over as easily and suddenly as he did from being a champion gold bug republican to being a champion 16-to-1 democrat.

WHAT THE LOUISIANA PURCHASE HAS BECOME.

The states and territories of the purchase produced 264,000,000 bushels of wheat in 1900, valued at $152,000,000—more than half of the wheat crop of the whole United States; 1,013,000,000 bushels of corn, or forty-eight per cent of the country's product; and thirty-eight per cent of the country's oats The wheat, corn, oats, rye, barley, cotton, hay and potatoes produced in this region in 1900 brought $755,000,000, and its farm animals were valued at $825,000,000, thirty-eight per cent of those of the whole country

From that celebrated pioneer experiment in wheat-growing by Oliver Dalrymple, a wealthy Minnesota farmer, in the territory of Dakota in 1876 quickly came magnificent results. In 1902 North Dakota stood second in the list of wheat-producing states and Minnesota first These with Misouri, South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas, all in the Louisiana Purchase, led all the rest of the country last year in wheat-growing Much more than half of the country's 670,000,000 bushels grown in 1902 (valued at $422,000,000) was grown in the states of the old Jefferson tract.

And the story of corn is similar Illinois stood first in corn yield in 1902, as in most years. The four Louisiana states of Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska and Kansas led all the rest of the country. More than half the country's corn crop, valued at $1,017,000,000, was produced in the territory of the Purchase. Iowa was second in 1902 in the production of oats, Illinois being first. Another Louisiana state, Minnesota, was second that year in barley production, California leading. Iowa was second in hay, New York heading the list. Two-thirds of the country's 195,800 tons' yield of beet sugar for 1902 was grown by the territory west of the Mississippi. Texas, a region which belonged to Louisiana at the time Bonaparte transferred the province to the United States in 1803, but our claim on which was given up to Spain by President Monroe in 1819 as part of the price which we paid for Florida, and which we did not recover until Polk's days, in 1845, produces almost a third of the entire country's cotton. Texas, however, is not included in Louisiana in any of the figures given in this article.—Charles M. Harvey in "The World's Work."

"ALL WOMEN MOTHERS."

Mrs. Livermore Would Have Marriage What Catholic Church Calls It—A Sacrament.

"Women are all mothers, whether they are married or single," said Mrs Mary A. Livermore recently, before the Mothers and Fathers' club in the New Century building. Mrs. Livermore was speaking of "Character" and the home and the ideal relationship of husbands and wives.

"A woman without love of children lacks the best quality of her nature," she said. "The advance of a nation comes through its homes, not through its battleships, its great trusts or its corporations.

"We are rushing on toward co-operative housekeeping. Soon the washing and the culinary work will be outside the house altogether Women are now employed in 400 occupations, whereas when the war closed, they were engaged in only thirty; now there are only twenty occupations in which women are not employed.

"We need better domestic service I used to think the cooking schools would solve the problem, but the cooking they do is too fancy for family use. I would have marriage what the Roman Catholic church calls, but does not make it—a sacrament."

STRANGLING A TREE.

The vegetable python, which can strangle a forest monarch, furnishes tragedies as intense as those born of flesh and blood. James Rodway, who traveled extensively in Guiana, says woe betide the tree giant when he falls into the clutches of the clusia, or fig. Its seeds, being provided with a pulp which is very pleasant to the taste of a great number of birds, are carried from tree to tree and deposited on the branches Here it germinates, the leafy stem rising upward and the roots flowing, as it were, down the trunk until they reach the soil.

At first, these aerial roots are soft and delicate, with apparently no more power for evil than so many small streams of pitch, which they resemble in their slowly flowing motion downward. Here and there they branch, especially if an obstruction is met with, when the stream either changes its course or divides to right and left. Meanwhile leafy branches have been developed, which push themselves through the canopy above and get into the light, where their growth is enormously accelerated

As this takes place the roots have generally reached the ground and begun to draw sustenance from below to strengthen the whole plant Then comes a wonderful development. The hitherto soft, aerial roots begin to harden and spread wider and wider, throwing out side branches which flow into and amalgamate with each other until the whole tree trunk is bound in a series of irregular living hoops. The strangler is now ready for its deadly work.

The forest giant, like all eogens must have room to increase in girth and here he is bound by cords which are stronger than iron bands. Like an athlete, he tries to expand and burst his fetters, and if they were rigid he might succeed. The bark bulges between every interlacing—bulges out, and even tries to overlap but the monster has taken every precaution against this by making its bands very numerous and wide.

As the tree becomes weaker its leaves begin to fall, and this gives more room for its foe. Soon the strangler expands itself into a great bush almost as large as the mass of branches and foliage it has effaced If we look carefully around us we see examples of entire obliteration—a clusia, or fig, standing on its reticulated hollow pillar, with only a heap of brown humus at its base to show what has become of the trunk that once stood up in all its majesty on that spot.

EMERGENCY RATION

A man has lived forty days without other food than his own fat.

Fat is man's emergency ration. The fat is stored in convenient hollows all over the body against the day of necessity.

Consumption makes heavy demand on the storage of fat. Nature uses fat to fight the disease. The crying need of the consumptive is fat.

Scott's Emulsion contains the best fat to be had, next to human fat itself. Scott's Emulsion is a natural substitute for human fat. It prevents waste. It furnishes the consumptive with nature's own weapon for fighting the disease.

IT MATTERS NOT

How Sick You Are or How Many Physicians Have Failed to Help You.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy will Cure You if a Cure is Possible.

Doctors are not infallible and there are many instances where they have decided a case was hopeless and then the patients astonished everyone by getting well and the sole cause of their cure was Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. A case in point is that of James Lettuce of Canajoharie, N. Y., who writes:

"Some years ago I was attacked with pains in my back and side that were fearful in the extreme. I could not control my kidneys at all and what came from them was mucous and blood. I was in a terrible state and suffered intensely A prominent physician of Albany, N. Y., decided that an operation was all that would save me. I decided that and commenced to take Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy I felt better almost instantly. When I had taken about two bottles, the flow from the bladder was much cleaner, the pain stopped, and I was saved from the surgeon's knife and am now well."

Dr. W. H. Morse, the famous physician of Westfield, N. J., has this to say of this great medicine:

"I have known it to cure chronic inflammation of the kidneys, where the attending physician pronounced the case incurable."

No form of kidney, liver, bladder or blood disease, or the distressing sicknesses so common to women, can long withstand the great curative power of this famous specific. Its record of cures has made it famous in medical circles everywhere.

It is for sale by all druggists in the New 50 Cent Size and the regular $1.00 size bottles—less than a cent a dose. Sample bottle—enough for trial, free by mail. Dr. David Kennedy Corporation, Rondout, N. Y.

WANTS THE JOURNAL.

Mr. Hearst Would Like To Buy Mr. Munsey's Paper.

Newspaperdom says that it is known positively in Boston that W R. Hearst has been carrying on negotiations with Frank A Munsey for the purchase of the Journal of that city and the Washington (D. C) Times. It is given out too, from a reliable source, that Mr. Hearst is anxious to take over the properties as soon as possible, but for some undisclosed reason, Mr Munsey is holding off a final disposition of his two papers In all probability Munsey rates the value of his property very much higher than does such a shrewd and experienced newspaper owner as William R. Hearst.

Among well posted newspaper men in Boston who have been questioned concerning the Hearst-Munsey negotiations, it is thought that Munsey will finally sell at Hearst's figure

At any rate it is said Mr. Hearst will have a paper in Boston and if he doesn't buy the Journal, he will probably establish one. It would undoubtedly be considered much more desirable by Mr Hearst to purchase an already established paper, but then he has a way of doing things that permits no obstacles to prevent him

THAT FOUL STRIKE.

The foul strike rule has been the most cussed about innovation that baseball has ever known. Baseball enthusiasts who really do enthuse must get together and adopt some expressive language that will not be offensive to ladies, for when close games come and the ridiculous foul strike rule works against the very life of the game, who could hold back a spatter or two of over-expressiveness?—Worcester Spy.

BRADSTREET'S TRADE REPORT.

Review of Business Conditions in New Hampshire.

From reports received by Bradstreet's during the week, the most pertinent feature in the state seems to be the demand for all classes of labor and the increased activity in manufacturing circles Some of the mills took advantage of the holiday Thursday and closed down for the rest of the week in order to omake necessary repairs. The weather has been cold but pleasant, and retail trade has increased materially. The high winds have caused the roads to dry kuickly, and traveling throughout the state is settled. Farmers are beginning on their spring work, but as yet have done little planting. The state is nearly free from labor disturbances, and what there are seem to be of minor importance. Collections have improved somewhat and are in about their normal condition.

There is to be a new toy factory at Manchester; the locomotive shops are very busy and business in other manufacturing lines is brisk; wholesale trade has been up to its usual volume and retail trade has improved somewhat. Wosk on the electric road from Keene to Swanzey is expected to be begun at once, and part of the material has already been shipped; business in manufacturing circles continues good. The new paper company at Portsmouth is in financial troubles, but the prospects are good that it will be re-organized with sufficient capital to complete the work. The prospects are that the shoe factory will be taken by a new firm which will employ a large number of hands. There is a generally prosperous state. There has been a slight disturbance in the hoisery mill at Franklin Falls; manufactories of all kinds are busy. The underwear concern at Franklin is very busy and is contemplating moving to larger quarters; retail trade is about as usual. A Haverhill, Mass, shoe concern has leased a factory at Hampton and is to move part of its business there. Conditions at Claremont are favorable and labor is in great demand. The paper mills at Bristol continue very busy and the textile mill is running to full capacity. The electric railroad company at Laconia has begun changing the road from narrow to standard gauge; manufacturing of all kinds is very brisk and the demand for labor is ahead of the supply The prospects are that there will be a considerable amount of building the present season; retail trade is said to be the best for the season that it has been for years. The hoisery and textile mills at Tilton are all busy and there is a good demand for all classes of labor; retail trade is only fair. The labor disturbance in the shoe shop at Exeter is practically at an end and the men are returning to work The firm is said to have plenty of orders and will be running to full capacity shortly. Conditions at Rochester are about the same; there have been inquiries from out-of-town parties about locating here in Conway and vicinity the business is the best for years and there is a demand for all kinds of labor; prospects are good for a busy summer season. Littleton reports manufacturing lines busy, but that retail trade is very quiet on acconut of the cold, backward weather The mills and other industries at Peterborough are all busy and labor well employed At Groveton retail trade is said to be improving, as the roads are getting settled; labor is in good demand. All manufacturing industries at Nashua continue active and labor of all kinds is in good demand; retail trade is said to have improved very much. Conditions at Concord remain about the same; the electric road is being changed from narorw to standard gauge and there is a shortage of labor in that class of work.

When the wife's away the men will play

When a woman forgets to ask if her hat is on straight it is because she isn't wearing one.

You can't teach a man who is in love very much about the sensations of chilsl and fevers.

When a woman keeps going to a mirror and looking into it is a sign she is wondering if some man thinks some other woman is prettier than she is.

STORY OF SAN TOY.

The Chinese-English musical play San Toy is to be the attraction at Music hall this (Wednesday) evening. The story of San Toy is of the troubles that befall a wealthy Chinaman who, in order to evade an imperial edict, which commands that all the nobles shall send their daughters to the palace to become members of the emperor's Amazonian guard, disguises his daughter as a boy. The girl in the meantime has fallen in love with a young English army officer who is stationed near and an elopment is planned between the two.

Just at this point a messenger arrives from the emperor, who has been apprised of the deception which has been practiced, commanding the Mandarin to appear at court with his child. They are followed there by the faithful Englishman and many amusing complications ensue. In the end, of course, the emperor forgives everybody and the heroine is allowed to wed her faithful English lover. The story while not very complex nor deep has allowed the authors to introduce many funny situations and to supply a plentitude of musical numbers most tuneful in quality. San Toy had long runs in both London and New York and in the former city surpassed in popularity all the other musical productions of late years. In New York it has had three separate and distinct "long runs" on Broadway, a very unusual occurence for the metropolis; as one engagemen usually suffices for any light entertainment. This was owing no doubt to the fact that while the music of San Toy is of the popular order it is rather better than is to be found in the usual run of musical comedies. The company presenting San Toy this season, while some changes have been made, is in the main the same as when it was seen in New York. Among the members are Samuel Collins, George K. Fortescue, Hobart Smock, Sarony Lambert, Nale Barry, Joseph Cauto, Nellie Lynch, Isobel Hall, Norah Lambert and a large and efficient chorus. The orchestra carried by the company is under the direction of John Braham, while it is promised that nothing will be found lacking in the way of scenic equipment and costuming.

ALL CHARMED BY IT.

Says the Nashua Press: Critics and theatre going people in general all are unsparing in their praise and admiration of Robert Edeson. Nashuans who were charmed by his acting in Soldiers of Fortune last evening at the theatre are only a small addition to his army of admirers. Mr. Edeson is surrounded by a company of remarkable ability, who in every line and situation fully equal the best that could be expected of them. Alan Dale, the critic, says of Mr Edeson that unlike the actors of today he possesses exceeding modesty and he is anxious to see if in the years to come he still retains this virtue. Possessed of a magnificent stage presence, and with that true manliness which is the keynote of his success, he surely has made an enviable reputation, as was evinced by repeated encores last evening. A return engagement would be more than appreciated.

HOYT'S A BUNCH OF KEYS.

To say that A Bunch of Keys is coming soon recalls to the average theatregoers pleasant recollections of eccentric comedians and pretty girls and a wealth of songs and dances in the latest up-to-date fashion belonging to that class of theatrical entertainments called, for the lack of a better name, farce comedy, which, whatever shortcomings they may have, possess at least one great advantage— their story is never so intricate or essential to the success of the entertainment that liberties cannot be taken with it to almost any extent so long as they result in improvement Consequently a first class farce comedy though appearing season after season under the same name is virtually a new show each year. Such is the case with A Bunch of Keys, which will appear at Music hall next Friday night. The story and characters are, of course, retained, but all the old music and comedy interpolations have been swept aside and the newest, latest, and brightest material in the way of songs, dances and humorous incidents have been added to this season's version

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

The Grand Chancellor of Indiana. Notes and Gossip.

The newly elected grand chancellor of Indiana, Dr C. A. Tindall, is doing good work for the order in his jurisdiction, and the membership is rapidly increasing. Dr. Tindall has been connected with the Knights of Pythias for a number of years and has been a prominent member of the grand lodge for some time. He is exteremly popular among the Knights in the Hoosier State and is deservedly entitled to the high office bestowed upon him. The order in Indiana is in a most flourishing condition, recent reports showing there are 470 lodges in the jurisdiction, with a membership of 47,000.

DR. C. A. TINDALL.

The supreme chancellor reports that the order in the entire supreme domain is enjoying a period of unexampled prosperity.

Recent reports show the endowment rank greatly improved, with a net gain in membership of over 4,000 during the past year.

The subordinate lodges have paid out approximately $1,500,000 for relief during the past year.

The condition of the order in Montana is improving and shows the effects of the earnest work being done there by Grand Chancellor White.

MODERN WOODMEN.

Value of a Good Foresters' Team. Woodmen Splinters.

A good forester team is the lifeblood of a camp, says Modern Woodman. If your initiations have been gone through in a slipshod manner, have a chief forester appointed and team selected, then provide them with copies of the official drill manual and watch results. As soon as the team begins to exemplify the work according to the ritual the members of the camp will be surprised at the increased interest at once manifested.

The membership of the Modern Woodmen in Pennsylvania has passed the 11,000 mark.

There were 4,593 lapses in the Kansas jurisdiction during the year 1902.

Iowa is the second largest jurisdiction in point of membership. In the Hawkeye State there are 75,000 Modern Woodmen.

It is authoritatively stated that enough is already known about the results in the several states to make it sure that there will be an adequate readjustment of rates at Indianapolis.

ROYAL ARCANUM.

Notes of the Order From Various States.

The order is increasing rapidly in membership in Pennsylvania. In this jurisdiction there are 271 councils, with a membership of 31,000.

The order lost by death 2,546 members during the year 1902.

The Royal Arcanum continues to grow. Latest reports show the 2,045 councils of the order have a membership of nearly 260,000.

March has been the banner month; 6,031 members were admitted during the month.

Advertise your meetings and entertainments. Councils using printers' ink liberally are growing rapidly.

T. M. Hayes of Washington has been elected grand regent of the District of Columbia.

The grand council of Missouri has heartily indorsed the movement for a Temple of Fraternity at the world's fair and made an appropriation for the organization of a Royal Arcanum Hospital Bed Fund association.

Sons of America.

March reports show a steady gain in membership and the institution of a number of new camps.

Progressive work is being done in Maryland. New camp fires are constantly being lighted, and the rosters of old camps are steadily increasing in size.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.
DISTRICT OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

IN RE EPPING BRICK COMPANY.

HOWARD GILMORE, named in the petition in Bankruptcy, and mortgagee of certain property of said Epping Brick Company in said District, suggests to the Court here that Robert Scott and Eugene P. Nute, co-receivers heretofore appointed in this proceeding, have, to wit, on the sixteenth day of April, now current, sold the property of said Epping Brick Company in this District for the aggregate price of twenty-one thousand, four hundred dollars, said sale was in accordance with the order of this Court, and was by agreement of the receivers with the mortgagees, made free from all mortgages and liens, the proceeds to be held for distribution to such persons and in such proportion as the proper Court shall order, the proceeds being subject to just the same liens as the property itself would have been if this sale had not been made, and with the agreement that the value of any wood not included in any of said mortgages shall be deemed to be the same as was fixed by the appraisers heretofore appointed by the Superior Court of New Hampshire all which more fully appears in the return made by said co-receivers to this Court.

The purchaser stands ready to complete payment so soon as the sale is confirmed and deed given, and it is for the interest of all concerned that the deed be given and the proceeds got in to the hands of the receivers.

Wherefore said Gilmore moves that said sale be confirmed and the co-receivers be ordered to deliver deed, collect the proceeds, and hold them to await further orders.

HOWARD GILMORE,
By his Attorneys, ARTHUR G. FULLER.

ORDERED BY THE COURT, that a hearing be had upon the same on the fourteenth day of May, A. Portsmouth Citizens Gladly Testify.

It is testimony like the following that has placed "the old Quaker remedy" so far above competitors. When people right here at home raise their voice in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Portsmouth citizen.

Mrs. C. H. Gould, of 12 Cass street, says:—"Reading one evening in a newspaper I came across an advertisement about Doan's Kidney Pills and it occurred to me that they would be good for my son. He had weak kidneys for years, having been injured by a toss from a cow. For a long time after the mischance it was thought he would not recover, and when he was able to get around, his kidneys were in a very serious condition. Finally it developed into a very bad back accompanied with urinary weakness, dizziness and pains in the head. I got Doan's Kidney Pills for him at Philbrick's pharmacy in the Franklin block. They soon proved to be the very thing he required. The aching and the lameness in the back stopped. The urinary weakness was corrected and in all other ways he was improved."

CITIZEN EMPLOYEE.

WHAT OUR BOASTED INDEPENDENCE MEANS TO HIM.

Political Democracy and Industrial Autocracy Cannot Co-exist—No Man Can Continue Half Slave and Half a Freeman.

There are a convincing roll and volume to the words, "Triumphant Democracy." They sound well. But the author of this phrase overlooked several somewhat important considerations. Democracy is not yet triumphant even in America. After it has gained control of the country in which it is supposed to have reached its highest development, predictions about its ruling the world will be more to the point. Such an idea at present is but a dream of hope. Democracy has its hardest battle yet to fight—right here in America.

America, as a nation, is leading a dual life. It is preaching democracy and practicing autocracy, like a temperance lecturer who takes a drink of whisky to give inspiration to his words. For 126 years but one political philosophy has been taught in the United States—the philosophy of freedom, equal rights, "the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." It has covered newspaper pages and resounded from public rostrums and in legislative halls. The doctrine has been laid down in courts; schools have taught it; books are full of it; the nation is saturated with it. Judging by our political standards, every American must be free and equal in his political rights to every other American. He must be exercising liberty and pursuing happiness unhindered. Everybody, theoretically, has an equal voice in the government. Each citizen is an uncrowned sovereign.

This is one side of American life. There is another. Interests involving the lives and happiness of thousands are in the hands of one man responsible to nobody. He has as absolute control within his sphere as any autocrat now on earth or as any autocrat who ever existed. His employees are his subjects, owing him closer and stronger allegiance than they owe to any government. Their time and their energies are his to do with them as he pleases. He cannot decree that one of these subjects be beheaded. That is not necessary; our modern methods are not so crude. The autocrat of today can control his subjects without any such revolting brutality. It is usually sufficient to deprive the subject of his means of livelihood and thus make him his own executioner. This the autocrat of today has ample power to accomplish. The insurgent subject can be cast out, an exile in the industrial world. He who controls your means of livelihood controls your life.

"I will not do this thing," says the "free and independent" citizen employee, asserting his proud prerogative. "It is against my own best interests and the interests of my country."

"Very well," replies the industrial autocrat. "I have no further use for your services. You may go."

"Whither shall I go?" inquires the "free and independent" citizen, finding his freedom rather embarrassing at the very first step. "I know no business but this. My life has been spent in learning it. No other means of livelihood is open to me. You control this branch of industry absolutely."

"Your troubles are nothing to me. This business is my business. Do as I say or go."

The "free and independent" citizen does as the industrial autocrat says. He does it absolutely and unquestioningly thereafter. A "kicker" is not appreciated in the industrial world when the autocrat to whom he is subject is the target for his protests. When the "free" man may be sent into the world without an occupation at the whim of an autocrat to whom he owes allegiance, it behooves the "free" man to please the autocrat. In other words, the "free and independent" American citizen employee must of necessity be the willing and submissive slave of an industrial autocrat.

Usually the command to do this or that thing concerns the business of the autocrat only, usually, too, it is a reasonable demand—at least from the standpoint of the autocrat. Everybody concedes that the autocrat has the right to conduct his own business in his own way. The law upholds him. Public opinion is not adverse. It is not sufficiently enlightened, or, if one does to take the opposite view, it has earned better. The important fact is that the industrial autocrat is able to exact unquestioned obedience from the "free and independent" citizen employee. It may be more or less important to consider that the obedience may take the form of using the employee's literary skill to write for publication in a great newspaper an article that he knows to be false, misleading and vicious. To be sure, the autocrat does not think it so. Perhaps he does not know enough to think straight upon such questions, or his interests may be in a different direction. At all events, the hired literary skill expresses the views of the autocrat, not of the writer. The employee may be called upon to take an unconscionable advantage of a business rival, to falsify corporation records or destroy them in order to carry out or cover up a conspiracy to defraud, to twist the law so as to cover up or permit some villainy. When the "free and independent" citizen becomes an employee, his conscience is one of the instruments he turns over to the industrial autocrat.

Of course the citizen employee has the right to vote and hold office. He may listen to public speakers paint [illegible] among the peoples [illegible]. Indeed, he may find happiness in reading the forms and contemplating the philosophy of freedom. But he cannot blind himself to the fact that in America industrial absolutism is set over against political democracy. Can they live on in harmony? Abraham Lincoln said no nation could continue to exist half slave and half free. Can any man continue to be half a slave and half a freeman?

It is only within the last quarter of a century that this issue has begun to shape itself sharply in the United States. Twenty-five years ago industry was so chaotic—or anarchistic, if you please—that no one man in that field had a power that was especially dangerous.

The industrial autocrat necessarily has absolute control over a large proportion of the citizenship of the country. It is becoming most difficult and unprofitable to shift from calling to calling. We are rapidly reaching a point where industrial autocrats will have absolute control over a majority of the citizens of the country. American citizens are becoming industrial independents, subjects, vassals, serfs or slaves, just as one views it. In other words, a large section of the country's citizenship has a double allegiance, which is becoming more and more sharply defined. On one side the allegiance is to a political organism built on the lines or on the principles of freedom—an organism that he respects more or less and loves with a greater or less degree of warmth. On the other hand, he owes allegiance to an industrial autocrat who has power over his livelihood—over the happiness, if not the very existence, of himself and his family. He appeals to the government, if he have intelligence enough to feel his position, and finds the government impotent before the might of the industrial autocrat. It cannot save its citizens from the exactions of powerful business combinations. But he finds the autocrat able not only to defy the government, but to reward and protect those who serve him well. Peace, honor and plenty are in store for those who do the bidding of the king.

In the citizen's dual allegiance his narrow self interest and his closest and strongest ties are to the industrial autocrat. In the silent but everlasting contest between democratic government and industrial autocracy the citizen with dual allegiance is necessarily on the side of the industrial autocrat; hence the industrial autocrat constantly gains in power. His dependents become more numerous as well as more closely bound to his fortunes. In the social evolution of today the industrial autocrat's star is in the ascendant. If his power continues to grow in the future as it has grown in the past, he will rule absolutely the enfeebled government, and we will have political as well as industrial autocracy, for the industrial autocrat will control the democratic republic. That government which is controlled by an autocrat is an autocracy, no matter what its nominal form may be.

I do not mean to imply that America has come to this already, but the seeds have been sown. The plant is even growing with that trend. It is as certain as that night follows day that the citizen cannot continue indefinitely in his dual allegiance. There are too many points of contact, and at every point it is a clashing contact. No man can be a good subject of an industrial autocrat and at the same time a good citizen of a democratic republic. The interests he must serve are antagonistic—fatally, irreconcilably so. Our political and industrial philosophies must be harmonized. If America would retain political democracy, it must also have industrial freedom. * * *

We now live in a decade what they lived in a century 200 years ago. Our industrial feudalism is rapidly giving way to industrial centralization. Already we have one man in the world of industry with greater power than Louis XIV. ever had in the world of politics. A nation more powerful than the whole of Europe in the day of Louis takes this man's word as financial gospel. The whole industrial world trembles before him.

Where is this going to end? Is a man with the control of industry within his grasp, with an organization so centralized as to be responsive to his every impulse, going to be foiled by a many headed political organization pursuing a more or less abstract ideal in a haphazard and desultory way? It makes little difference whether this new order of industry is a pure autocracy or an oligarchy with a sort of presiding autocrat. It has the power and solidarity of interest to overmaster the loose and unmanageable political organization. In the present indifferent temper of the people there is no doubt that the industrial autocracy will continue to dominate the nation. As time passes it must gain complete control. * * *

I have no remedy to suggest. Indeed, I would be a sage if I could devise one to fit the case. What I want to lay emphatically before the reader is the fact that American citizens are fast acquiring a dual allegiance, the demands of which are absolutely clashing and incompatible. At the same time an industrial order is growing up in this country essentially antagonistic to the political order that we have been building for more than a century and a quarter. Our economics sanction this industrial order—alien to our political philosophy, alien to our institutions and menacing to our future security. It leaves us hopelessly powerless in the face of a threatened perversion of our most cherished ideals.

Industrial autocracy cannot live on terms of peace with political liberty. It is impossible to have both at once. We must have industrial and political liberty or industrial and political autocracy. Which we shall have depends upon the intelligence, patriotism and essential ideals of American citizens.—J. W. Bennett in Arena.

GOMPERS ANSWERS PARRY.

Says Manufacturers' Association President Has Lost His Senses.

In a statement replying to some of the things contained in the report of President Parry to the Manufacturers' association at New Orleans Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, says:

If there were any doubt that Mr. Parry had taken leave of his reason, the report (or, rather, harangue) which he has made to his convention demonstrates it beyond any doubt. If the Manufacturers' association, at its convention at New Orleans, indorses Mr. Parry's unjustified, undigested and malicious antagonism to the effort of the workers to secure material and moral improvement, they simply write themselves down to his low level and stand committed with him for all the injury which must follow from his rabid utterances, his venomous and ignorant antagonism, which must provoke only resentment and retaliation.

Organized labor is the result of our industrial development and environment. It proposes to secure a larger share of the production of wealth. It seeks to secure these objects by peaceful and lawful methods. It aims to establish more rightful relations between man and man.

Organized labor is here to stay—yes, to stay long after Mr. Parry's name shall have been forgotten. It has survived many encounters with men of the Parry caliber.

Organized labor seeks no such conflict as Mr. Parry would promote, nor will it run away from it. We desire industrial and social peace and are making for it, Mr. Parry and those who act with him to the contrary notwithstanding.

We shall be enabled soon to discern to what extent the manufacturers of the United States are in accord with him. At this writing we are confident that he represents but an infinitesimal part of the American employers.

Organized labor faces the future confident and self reliant and hurls back into the teeth of Mr. Parry his foul vituperation and abuse. Organized labor is constantly striving for the attainment of a better and higher life, the fulfillment of its mission for the brotherhood of man.

If the American manufacturer can stand Parry, organized labor certainly can stand him. He is dangerous only to his friends and associates; to those he chooses to treat as enemies he is perfectly harmless. He cannot open his mouth without injuring his own cause. He is a ranter, intemperate and bigoted, ignorant of the history of labor and the emancipation of industry. Even the element he represents in a measure recognizes the inexpediency of his methods and gently admonishes him that he is too radical.

Waudby Is Well Qualified.

"The promotion of William S. Waudby to be commissioner of labor, if it shall be brought about by the active co-operation and demand of the labor forces, will be strictly in keeping with the civil service principles of which the president is a well known advocate," writes a Washington member of the typographical union, of which organization Mr. Waudby is also a member. "Mr. Waudby has been a special agent of the bureau of labor for about eight years and is thoroughly familiar with the problems presented. We, as workingmen, want a commissioner of labor who will be to his peculiar field what the commissioner of Indian affairs is to the Indians, what the commissioner of pensions is to the pensioners, what the commissioner of patents is to the inventors, what the commissioner of the general land office is to matters pertaining to public lands, what the commissioner of education is to education—a man interested in the particular work covered by his sphere of action. We ought to have a commissioner of labor who is devoted heart and soul and mind to the interests of labor, and Mr. Waudby has the ability, the experience and the honesty to fill the office capably and acceptably to the only interests which should be consulted as to this particular appointment, the wage earners of the country."

Growth of Miners' Union.

S. M. Sexton, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal, makes some very interesting comparisons in the current issue of that paper, giving the membership, growth and financial standing of the mine workers' organization during the five years that John Mitchell has been president of that body. President Mitchell was elected in 1898:

1898	32,902	1901	198,021
1899	61,887	1902	232,000
1900	115,521	1903	264,439

On Dec. 31, 1902, according to the official audit, there was in the treasury the sum of $1,027,120.29.

This is a tremendous showing in both men and in money. A glance at the figures prove that there has never been a retrograde in either the number of members or in dollars since John Mitchell assumed the helm.

Night Work In Germany.

A movement has been inaugurated in Germany for the restriction of night work in some laborious industries. The demand is made that night work should be unlawful in the case of employees under eighteen years of age, and for adult males eight hours shall be the maximum legal period of night labor. It is urged that overtaxing the physical abilities of a workman diminishes his productive power. Too much of this lemon squeezing is being done, not only in Germany, but elsewhere. Every man has his limit, as has a mule or a steam engine. In overworked labor we have one of the secrets of a nation's physical decay and of that mental and moral rot known as anarchy.—Age of Steel.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

Considering her population, California is one of the banner Pythian states. In the Golden State there is a live, progressive and high grade membership approaching the 15,000 mark and rapidly increasing in numbers.

Since organization the endowment rank has paid over $18,000,000 in death benefits.

The uniform rank is composed of 870 companies now, with about 45,000 Knights Loyal on their rosters.

There are 550 lodges in Illinois with a membership of about 50,000.

New companies of the uniform rank are being mustered in in several jurisdictions.

From the latest returns from supreme headquarters the order in general numbers at present about 600,000 members in good standing. There are about 8,000 subordinate lodges.

The board of control, endowment rank, having failed to decide on a location for headquarters, they will remain in Chicago.

The Ohio Pythian home now shelters 158 children, and there is talk of extending its benefits to aged Knights and their wives and widows. The Knights are now building a $70,000 annex to their home.

The grand lodge of West Virginia adopted a resolution ordering the grand master of exchequer to refund to the subordinate the funds collected for the proposed sanitarium at Hot Springs.

The New Hampshire grand lodge is accumulating a fund for a Pythian home. They have a standing executive committee which has charge of the matter.

MASONIC.

Commendable Work of Special Committees—Temple Chips.

A very commendable work is being done by many lodges in the appointment of special committees to seek out nonaffiliants in their respective jurisdictions, says the Iowa Bulletin. The work of such a committee, if thoroughly performed, will add to the membership many who for one reason or another are not in active connection. They are as a class of more value than the same number of new recruits.

An association has been incorporated in Dallas to erect a home for the Scottish Rite Masons of north Texas.

Salt Lake City Scottish Rite Masons are actively working to have a Masonic temple in that city.

The grand chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Kansas has elected Frank E. Davis of Atchison grand high priest and William M. Shaner of Topeka grand secretary.

Grand Master Tennis of Pennsylvania has directed that the names of all candidates for initiation shall be openly announced in the lodge before admission.

The Masons of St. Joseph, Mich., have decided to expend $50,000 on a new Masonic temple.

Last reports showed there were 121 lodges in West Virginia, with a membership of 8,022.

Henry R. Adams of Minneapolis is now grand master of the grand lodge of Minnesota.

The Eastern Star will erect a modern hospital at the Masonic home in Springfield, O., to cost about $15,000.

The fund being raised in New York for a Masonic sanitarium for consumptives has passed the $1,000 mark.

ODD FELLOWS.

All Should Share the Burdens. Triple Link Notes.

The mere payment of your weekly lodge dues does not fully discharge your duties as a member of this great brotherhood, says Odd Fellows' Siftings. The burdens of the regular routine should be borne equally by all. It is not right that the many should participate in the benefits made possible by the labor of the few regular attendants.

Past Grand Sire James B. Sanders was recently presented with a fifty years' veteran jewel by the grand lodge of New York.

The lodge is a school. Be punctual and accurate in the discharge of duties.

Last reports showed there were 12,792 Odd Fellows' lodges in this country with a membership of 1,200,931.

There are about 6,000 Rebekah lodges in the United States, with a membership of 375,000.

Order of Iroquois.

The supreme secretary's recent report shows the order is in a most prosperous condition and growing rapidly.

The four largest lodges of the order are Red Jacket of Buffalo, Tuscarora lodge of Tonawanda, N. Y.; Miami lodge of Cincinnati, O., and Oneida lodge of Buffalo.

The order is now working in twelve of the principal states of the Union, as follows: Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan, California, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Minnesota and District of Columbia.

During the year 1902 the order of the Iroquois has been admitted for the transaction of business to the states of Oregon and Minnesota.

Knights of the Mystic Chain.

The latest reports show the various castles prosperous and the membership of the order increasing.

Castles should organize baseball teams and compete during the summer. This feature has done much for the advancement of the order in Pennsylvania.

MACCABEES.

The Great Commander of Illinois Maccabee Notes.

For the past eight years James F. Downer has been great commander of the Maccabee forces in Illinois and the rapid growth of the order in the Prairie State during this time shows that he is the right man in the right place. Mr Downer has few equals as an organizer and is a man of strong personality.

JAMES F. DOWNER.

From 1895 to 1897 he was lieutenant commander of the supreme tent and at the present time is a member of the supreme board of trustees. Illinois is now the fourth largest jurisdiction and has a membership of about 31,000.

Michigan tents are initiating members at every meeting and rapidly increasing the membership in the Wolverene State.

Long tent of New York now has a membership of about 900.

Many new tents were instituted in March.

The twenty largest tents of Pennsylvania have a combined membership of about 9,000.

Three Chicago tents recently held a joint review, at which 125 candidates were initiated.

UNITED WORKMEN.

A Lodge's School of Instruction. Bench Shavings.

Fulton lodge of Shelbyville, Ind., has organized a school of instruction for the purpose of equipping its members with the necessary knowledge to solicit applicants and meet the arguments of competitors. The school begins with such primary questions as how much it costs to join the lodge and what the rate of assessment is at different ages, and it advances from such simple questions to the more abstruse ones relative to the system of the order and in its development covers the whole range of information necessary to equip a man for canvassing for new members.

From reports received from a number of jurisdictions it is learned the order is growing rapidly.

Lodges should make a special effort to reinstate every suspended member who is eligible.

By paying your assessments promptly you will not imperil the protection provided for your family.

Care should be taken in adding new members that quality is not sacrificed to quantity.

ROYAL ARCANUM

The grand council of Quebec has broken all records of new grand councils during the first year of their existence. It will have made a net gain of about 500 members during its first year, and perhaps more.

Governor Garvin of Rhode Island is a member of Lonsdale council and a medical examiner of the order.

The wives and daughters of the members of Prince Albert council, Montreal, Que., have banded themselves into an association to be known as Prince Albert Ladies' Auxiliary.

The 112 councils in Illinois have a membership of 20,500.

E. O. Singleton of Nashville has been elected grand regent of Tennessee.

On April 1 there were 310 councils in New York with a membership of 70,169.

Quite a number of councils celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversaries in April.

There are 150 councils in Ohio, with a membership of about 14,000.

During the year 1902 there were 7,293 members suspended, 1 expelled and 186 withdrew.

Brooklyn council of Brooklyn, N. Y., has a membership of 631, and the goat is kept busy at every meeting.

Knights of Honor.

The order is making good progress in growth throughout the United States and losses from death and suspension are being made up by satisfactory acquisitions of new members.

After a careful examination of the books of the order the examiners report the Knights of Honor in sound condition financially.

Emery lodge, the new lodge established in Manchester, is named after the late Dr. Emery, who was one of the most prominent Knights in New Hampshire.

Artisans' Order.

The order has made splendid progress so far this year and is rapidly increasing in membership.

John H. Miller of Pennsylvania, who died recently, had been a member of the order since March 17, 1875.

FRATERNAL MISCELLANY

A large office building will be erected in Lawrence, Kan., by the Fraternal Aid association.

The Ladies of the Maccabees are rapidly increasing in membership.

The best results can be obtained by members and deputies working together in enthusiastic co-operation.

A fraternal order known as the Ching Chong Society of America was organized in Buffalo recently and is now extending throughout the country.

SAMUEL R. GARDNER.

An Artist Who Roasted Frankfurters

TWO women lived near the sea, but not in sight of it. As the spring wore on and the air began to be warm in the sun fire and bright with the etheric sun gold they longed for a whiff of the salt water, a sight of the blue green, foam capped breakers. They took a trolley to Coney Island, seven miles away.

At the shore the friends found a warm corner at the intersection of a pier and a bathing shed, where the sun shone and the wind could not enter and where there were not too many broken bottles to prevent them from stretching out upon the drab sand. One turned her back to the sun and built sand heaps like a happy child; the other sat facing the sun and gazed silently far out over the sea, where her heart is always. Both breathed in deep and long the electric ocean ozone.

This was very poetic and idyllic, so I have been at pains to tell of it, but there is more to it. That is, that the two friends before they knew it were made so hungry by the glorious sea air—or was it the sun tonic which so stimulated their digestion?—that the "hunk" of gingerbread they had brought with them was too small.

Near by was a pretentious restaurant that had all the luxuries of the season placarded upon its outsides and little besides oldish doughnuts and baked beans in its insides. The women took a seat at a table and asked for the soft shell crabs on the bill of fare.

"We ain't got no crabs yet. The season ain't open."

"Lobsters?"

"We ain't got no lobsters yet. The season ain't open."

The season was evidently open enough to advertise the crabs and lobsters on the menu, but not open enough for these to materialize before the customers. The customers had to walk by faith and not by sight.

THE FRANKFURTER MAN.

The friends left the delusive place and wandered disconsolate. "I know what," said one. "Here are some roast frankfurters. Let us have some frankfurter sandwiches."

"I don't like frankfurters," answered the woman with the finikin palate.

"But these look uncommonly good," said the one who has learned not to be too squeamish. The result was they approached the stand of the frankfurter man. He was uncommonly clean; so was his outfit. He had a row of frankfurters upon a sheet iron plate over a charcoal furnace. He turned them with an air of solicitude and watchful care as their plump sides became brown and juices bubbled out.

Well, the two respectable ladies were so hungry that they each ordered a frankfurter sandwich. The frankfurter roaster split a well baked bread roll, whisked a sausage upon it with a fork, handed it to the customer and said, "Help yourself to mustard."

The ladies did so; then, bold and unabashed, started down again to the sunny corner in the sand. A row of rowdies, idle waiters and Coney Island fakirs lined the walk on each side. As the ladies went past them, carrying each her frankfurter sandwich, some of these fellows uttered mournful dog howls and others barked. "Bow, wow, wow!"

Nevertheless the frankfurters tasted extremely good, and the ladies devoured them with relish, even the one who frowned on frankfurters owning that they were very nice. When the women started home, they passed again the frankfurter stand. There was the man roasting sausages still, with the absorbed air of an artist and an enthusiast, as though world movements depended on the perfect cooking of those tiny pink meat rolls. The woman who does not like frankfurters told the man that his were the best she ever tasted. His face brightened up at the compliment.

"There's lots more in roasting frankfurters than a body would think," he said. "You have to watch 'em every minute. Time and ag'in I've hired somebody to roast 'em for me and never found anybody to do it right. There's an art in it, you know, and I was two years learnin' to turn 'em out as good as this."

The man was the true artist. He wrought to perfection the only work his brains and environment permitted him to do. Everybody can do some one thing in perfection and make a good living at it.

MARCHING PLANTS.

Several years ago attention was called to the fact that the eastern plants of American were marching westward across the continent, keeping step with the advance of human settlement, and conquering the native plants as they proceeded. It was predicted that in time there would be a return of the westward plants sweeping eastward and overcoming their conquerors, and it is noted that the return seems already to have begun.

At present Australia presents, perhaps, the best example of this spreading and conquering tendency of those plants that follow the advance of man. The weeds that have found their way from Europe to Australia are crowding out the native weeds in many places, and especially in the more fertile lands. In some of the more rocky soils the native plants have the advantage in the contest.

A curious fact, brought out by observation in Australia, is that some imported plants, particularly ornamental garden varieties, cling to the neighborhood of their human friends as if they felt themselves to be strangers in a strange land, needing protection. Although they spring up vigorously within the limits of the gardens, self-sown, year after year yet they never gain any footing outside.

But the Scotch thistle does not show itself so timid. It has been introduced into both Australia and Tasmania—in the latter island, it is said, by an enthusiastic Scotchman who wished to see his national flower blooming around him on the other side of the earth, and it has taken advantage of its opportunities without fear and without favor.

FOUR-LEGGED BIRD.

Nothing in the realm of natural history in late years excelled in interest the announcement of the discovery in British Guiana of a bird with four legs. The crested hoatzin, opisthocomus crittatus, the only survivor of a race of birds several of which are known as fossils, inhabits the most secluded parts of the forests of South America, and it is probable that it is owing to its retiring habits it has outlived its congeners, as well as to the fact that feeding as it does upon wild arum leaves its flesh acquires so offensive a smell and flavor as to have gained for it the name of stink bird, and to render it entirely unfit for food. It is a large bird, almost as large as a peacock, in fact, but is very seldom seen. Oftener its loud, wailing cry is heard.

The chief peculiarity of the hoatzin, says J. Carter Beard, in telling of it, consists in the fact that when it is hatched it posseses four well developed legs, the front pair being of a reptilian character. The young birds leave the nest and climb about like monkeys over the adjoining limbs and act and look more like tree toads than birds.

After hatching the modification of the fore limbs begins, the claws of the digits falling off, and the wholes of the claw-like hands becoming flattened change into wings. After this modification has taken place feathers begin to grow and in a short time not a vestige remains of its original character. As Prof. F. A. Lucas, in an admirable monograph on "Spur, and Claws," in a bulletin of the Smithsonian Institution, says: "The adult birds not only have no claws upon their wings, but their thumbs, even, are so poorly developed that one would hardly suspect that in the nestlings we have the nearest approach to a quadruped found among existing birds."

Mr. J. J. Quech, who studied them in British Guiana, tells us that soon after the hatching the well developed claws on the polar and index, being constantly in use for hooking and holding on to surrounding objects, the nestlings when quite small are frequently found far away from any nest, climbing by the help of their clawed wings after the parent birds during feeding time. One curious feature noticed about a nestling which had been upset in the river was its power of rapid swimming and diving when pursued. As soon as the hand was placed on it, it dived rapidly in the dark water, in which it was impossible to see it, and arose at distances more than a yard away. Owing to this power the little creature managed to evade all efforts to secure it, taking refuge eventually under the bushy growth, where it was impossible to pursue it.

BEING REBUILT.

A New Gray's Inn Now In Course of Construction.

Portsmouth habitues of Gray's Inn at Jackson, N. H., which was burned at the close of last season, will be glad to learn that the work of rebuilding is to be commenced at once.

The new hotel will cost about $75,000, and consist of one large building, not five comparatively small buildings which made up the former Gray's Inn. The structure will be of modern style, lighted by electricity and supplied with every modern comfort and convenience.

The front of the main building will be 100 feet, giving in all a frontage of 200 feet.

The hotel will contain about 140 rooms. A bath room will be connected with every suite. The house will be supplied with water from Ellis river, the pipes for this purpose being carried a mile up stream.

It will be ready for opening in August and many old-time guests will be then invited to partake of its hospitalities.

NOT A FREAK.

Not as a freak but for his proficiency at the great game of skill George H. Sutton is well known in billiard circles, where he is considered one of the best players in the country. His ability is all the more remarkable, however, when it is considered that his arms are cut off just under the elbows and he holds the cue between the two sumps. In this manner he can also shave himelf and sew on buttons.

A PAPER WINS.

By a receipt handed down by Chief Justice Wiswell from the law court, the Bangor Commercial is a winner in the now famous liquor advertisement case, which originated in the Sanford municipal court, in which the Hon. J. B. Bass, publisher of the Commercial, was defendant. Chief Justice Wiswell rules that the Sanford court had no jurisdiction in the matter, and the complaint and warrant are dismissed.

HOUSE CLEANING HINTS.

How to Make Carpets, Walls and Brasses Neat.

This is the time of the year for the dread house cleaning. It is only dread, however, when it is not done properly. There shouldn't be clouds of dust and debris if the cleaning has been conscientiously attended to during the year.

The woodwork, the paper and the ceilings perhaps require more attention than anything else because they are usually neglected.

Take a loaf of bread and make wads of the inside; then, standing on a step-ladder, clean the wall paper with long, rapid strokes downward. This will be found to have a wonderful effect if done carefully. The brass chandeliers, if they have been neglected, need oxalic acid, followed by a brisk polishing with tripoli and paraffin. Wrought iron must be well washed and then wiped over with kerosene. Parquet floors should be rubbed with wax and turpentine polish, one pound of melted wax to one pound of turpentine, and then polished.

CLEAN THE PAPER WITH BREAD.

Glass, whether of windows or mirrors, can be made much brighter by being washed in weak tea or alcohol.

The carpet should be spread, after shaking, on the grass or on a clean floor. It should be scrubbed with a new broom dipped in a pail of ammonia water or ox gall and water in the proportion of a pint of gall to three gallons of soft water. If the carpet does not need to come up after the sweeping, it can be wiped over with a cloth wrung out frequently in clean water to which ammonia has been added.

The cellar is perhaps one of the most important places in the house. Every nook and corner should be cleaned out, even the coal bins. The rat holes should be stopped up with chloride of lime. Last of all, apply a generous coat of whitewash to the walls, ceilings and even foundation stones.

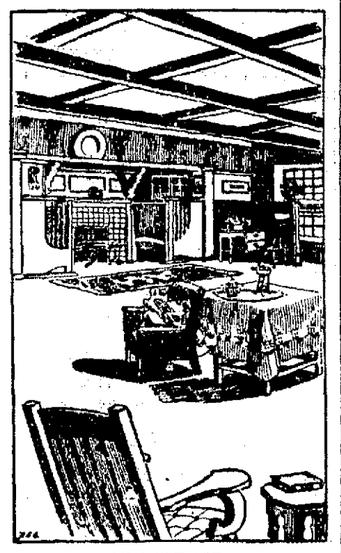

Above all, clean out your closets; dispose of everything for which you have no immediate use. It is by accumulating things she may at some time need that the weary housekeeper stores up trouble and hard work for herself.

HELEN CLIFTON.

FOR A SUMMER HOME.

A Hint Concerning the Furnishing of the Living Room.

The picture represents a large room, occupying nearly the whole of the ground floor of a summer house. The color scheme is pale green and terra cotta, the woodwork being painted white. The small paned windows are wide to admit plenty of fresh air and sunlight. The woodwork of the ceiling is stained green to correspond with the walls.

The settles in either side of the fireplace are particularly attractive for a large room. They are upholstered in green denim, the same material being used for the lower section of the walls.

ALICE DE WALD.

The New Skirt.

Skirts begin to show some signs of rebellion against the close fit that has prevailed so long, and there are three story skirts, arranged to show three separate parts or to have three deep and ungathered flounces. These are cut on the bias and laid around more like folds than flounces. The sleeves are also three story affairs, and, if one may use the strange comparison, the effect includes three levels and three perspectives. First is a cap effect at the top, then a big and puffy middle at the elbow, and the rest is close like the chatelaine cuff of yore. Some of the thin sleeves are tucked half way down, and the rest is bagged in at the wrist so that the outside hangs down much farther than the inner side. These are anything but graceful, but it is said they are the forerunners of worse atrocities in sleeves than a woman ever dreamed of. It is expected that the new styles will be in full vogue by fall.

AT THE NAVY YARD.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY

On Rye and Newington Routes Will Go Into Effect On Friday.

The rural mail delivery from the local postoffice for the towns of Rye and Newington will go into effect Friday morning, the first of May.

The routes will be in charge of Clarence Hoitt, for Rye, and Andrew Neal, for Newington. They have both been at work for some weeks getting the routes laid out and preparing a list of people who will use the service. The only condition is that there must be a suitable mail box, which will pass the inspection of the postoffice authorities.

The system, besides being of importance to the residents, is also a good thing for the merchants, as a mail order can be sent in and the goods, if small packages, sent out the same day, delivered at the house.

This has a correspondingly bad effect on the trade of the country stores, and a number of protests have been sent in to the department at Washington.

OUR BASEBALL TEAM.

It Should Be Under Way In a Fortnight Or So.

The outlook for a rattling good baseball team, in fact, the best since the team of '88, is growing brighter every day.

Two excellent locations for a first class ball park, both on the line of the electric road and within the five-cent fare limit, have been looked over and arrangements are being made to get one or the other.

With Ira Newick in charge, the cranks will be sure of fast ball, and he has already a good list of teams to pick from, for attractions.

With good support from the people, the team should be under way in two weeks time.

TROUBLE WITH FEED WIRES.

The Dover, Somersworth and Rochester street railway was put out of business on Tuesday by trouble with the main feed wires from the Rockingham light and power station in this city. The cars were stalled alon gthe line about noon and were pulled into the car barns by means of the storage batteries. Late in the afternoon the road management located the trouble in the cable crossing Great Bay, and by six o'clock the cars were again running.

FOUNDATION NEARLY COMPLETED.

Alderman Thomas G. Lester has the foundation for the Gen. Fitz-John Porter statue nearly completed and will begin laying the granite bases the first of next week. At this rate, Mr. Lester will have the base finished by the first of June, giving it plenty of time to settle before the statue is placed upon it.

WILL MEET TONIGHT.

The special committee on the new High school hold a meeting tonight, to arrange for calling for bids to remove the big house on the Haven property on Islington street The house will be sold, to be removed from the premises, but it must be torn down, as it is far too large to be moved through the street.

SLIGHT GAS EXPLOSION.

There was a slight explosion of gas in front of the residence of Mrs. Abbie Tredick on State street on Tuesday forenoon, but no damage resulted. The piping of the house was found to be defective and Sunday the gas company, who were sent for, disconnected the meter.

On Monday J. P. Sweetser fixed the pipe, but on Tuesday there was still an odor of gas and the gas company started to locate the leak.

They had located it outside the steps. These steps are closed in, almost air tight, and as a result there was a mixture of gas and air in the place and when the candle flame came in contact with it, there was an explosion which slightly raised the front steps. No one was injured, and in fact, at no time was there any danger. The damage and leak were repaired in a few hours.

MAY MAGAZINES.

The Cosmopolitan.

Nineteen stories and articles and one hundred and twelve illustrations form the contents of the May Cosmopolitan. J. Henniker Heaton, M. P., contributes an article on the British Parcel Post—particularly timely, in view of the plan, about which the entire mercantile world is showing so wide an interest, to introduce into this country the system of carrying parcels in the mail. Ella Adelia Fletcher is the author of a charmingly illustrated essay on "The Power and Beauty of Woman's Eyes." The wonderful possibilities of scientific corn culture are explained in an instructive paper, by A. D. Chamel, of the Illinois experiment station, entitled "The Marvels of Corn Culture," illustrated with a series of exemplifying photographs. Sir Edwin Arnold has written for this number of The Cosmopolitan an entertaining essay on a strange subject for him to treat —the tying of knots, with many practical illustrations. A contribution which will be widely read is "Platonic Friendship," by Rafford Pyke. John Brisben Walker, who has made a twenty years' study of taxation, offers "A Method of Equitable Taxation." Among other features of the magazine appear "Romances of the World's Great Mines," by Samuel E. Moffett; "The Food Laboratory"—an article on How to Administer the Kitchen—by John Brisben Walker; and a philosophical esay by H. G. Wells on "Accepted Institutions as Educational Agencies." The May Cosmopolitan is remarkably strong in fiction. Among the contributors are Henry Seton Merriman, Oliver Henry, Frank R. Robinson, Julia Valentine Bond and Tom Masson.

ON THE DIAMOND.

A Manchester firm will give a hat to every player on the home team who bats a ball over the centre field fence at Varick park this season.

Dover will cross bats with the New Hampshire college team at Central park next Saturday afternoon.

A strong baseball team is being organized at Sawyer's Mills. They have a number of new players there, among whom is a pitcher that is said to be about the cleverest in this section. They will hold a meeting in a few days, when they will complete the organization.

John Smith's team is about as strong as it was last season. But that does not necessarily mean that Manchester will jump in the lead and walk away with it, for other teams have built up their fences.

Collins could use Jim McGuire just now. That catcher has just bought his release from Brooklyn for $800.

Walter Clarkson's baseball doings in the White Mountains are likely to be aired in the course of the latest Yale-Harvard embroglio.

Arthur Clarkson is putting in an afternoon now and then with the Phillips-Andover nine. He says the Andover-Exeter game this year should be the greatest ever played between two preparatory school teams.

Outfielder Eddie Mullaney of the Concords has been released, being too fat to play his game. He wired to Doe for a chance and was told that the Brocktons have more men than they can use. Mullaney and Joyce came from the same town in Maine.

PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

Man Severely Hurt In A Friendly Wrestling Contest.

One of the most distressing accidents recorded in a long time occurred about midnight on Tuesday, in Red Men's hall. The members of the local commandery of the Knights of Malta had been holding a smoke talk and the company was just preparing to break up when two of those present, Fred Oldfield and A. Thurston Parker, became engaged in a friendly wrestling contest. Both men went to the floor, falling in such a manner that Mr. Oldfield inadvertently struck Mr. Parker a severe blow in the body with his elbow. The former rose to his feet immediately, but Mr. Parker was unable to do so. Mr. Oldfield and the others went to his assistance and it at once became evident that he was quite badly hurt.

Medical aid was immediately summoned and after an examination, the physician ordered Mr. Parker conveyed to his home in the ambulance. Internal injuries are feared.
